SHEEP FARMING IN OREGON

In the [illegible] an excellent letter on sheep farming in Oregon written by Mr [illegible] Wilson of the Reedville Farm found at the request of a [illegible] in Scotland

You [illegible] my opinion of [illegible] Oregon as a wool growing country and of Oregon in general and whether it is as suitable for [illegible] as is the [illegible] Oregon means [illegible] Where the sun goes down I have traveled a great deal through this wide world and on my travels I have as an experienced stockman strictly observed the [illegible] qualities of the great pastoral fields I have examined closely with the eye of a wool grower the rich plains of the Australian colonies I am well acquainted with the rolling hills and dales of lovely California I have [illegible] the great savannas of the West and [illegible] the [illegible] slopes of the Rocky Mountains the home of the antelope and the buffalo —and in all my tours during a period of many years I have seen nothing to surpass in richness the rolling prairies of Eastern Oregon and Eastern Washington Territory on the North Pacific coast of the United States East of the Cascades we have a very large area of country many millions of acres admirably adapted to wool growing for the raising of horses cattle and dairying There we have an immense district at present too remote for profitable cultivation but covered with an inexhaustible supply of native grasses These immense pastures are generally well supplied with water and comestible timber and well adapted for stock raising

Like Eastern Oregon and Eastern Washington Territory in a sanitary point of view and there are no more healthy climates in the world The atmosphere is pure and balmy In winter we have occasional cold snaps but in these there is vigor and fortunately they are never too severe nor do they last above a few weeks We are free from earthquakes floods and devastating hurricanes Among our rolling hills we have no pestilential swamps no [illegible] no seeds of consumption there the country being extremely healthy In whatever avocation we pursue the first thing a man has to do on arrival in Eastern Oregon is to pull out his purse and count his dollars If plenty of he will find ample scope for them if few he must cut his coat according to his cloth as we used to say in Scotland

Now here is wherein sheep and stock raising the great advantage lies of the eastern country compared to Western Oregon or the Australian colonies A little capital in the hands of a prudent careful man lays for him a good and substantial foundation By little or moderate capital I mean from eight to twelve hundred pounds sterling If you have more, so much the better you can extend your enterprise the wider but this sum is ample for a good beginning in sheep or stock raising A stranger arriving in Eastern Oregon with a view of settling in it must first look out for a suitable location—one that he thinks will make him a suitable home and taking especial care that there is plenty of water and an abundant outside range for stock in the future The location may be had in the eastern country of any size and almost at any price, but most men of moderate means can accommodate themselves with a snug home purchasing it with the land, 640 acres or less, from one hundred and fifty pounds sterling to two hundred They will find on the section (or square mile) or half section which they so purchase a moderately comfortable house and fair barn probably a nice orchard of five or ten acres including apple plum, and peach trees As a general rule the richest part of the claim (as it is so called) is enclosed with a substantial rail fence for the purpose of growing winter feed for your stock in case of a storm A fall of snow does occasionally occur when you have to feed your stock for a few weeks On an average this will happen once in three years but it may not be once in five years Happily your fortune does not lie in these few acres of purchased property on which your house is erected As far as your eye can reach over these great plains there are oceans of grass miles of which (as many as you please) are at your service rent free for occupying them The reason is this that all the unpurchased land of Eastern Oregon and Eastern Washington belong to the government They are Uncle Sam's and in the fullness of his heart he neither asks bill nor bond for their use he is glad to see you there and invites you freely to occupy them You can run and feed as many cattle, sheep and horses on them as you please without paying any rental

When you have sheep you must have a shepherd with them as it becomes every good citizen to take care that he never allows his flock to interfere with his neighbors generally 2000 sheep run in a band under one man but less numbers do better and are more profitable for the owners. It is on these free lands that you can make the dollars It is the privilege of that freedom that makes a little money go a long way in the eastern countries How different from home or the Australian and New Zealand colonies There is I know from experience no freedom there Whether you now buy or rent in the Australian colonies you have to pay exorbitantly for it The days of cheap land there are gone What can a man do either in the colonies or Britain unless he is backed up with riches? Absolutely nothing, so far as stock or sheep raising is concerned Different is it here Several hundred pounds in the hands of a frugal and far seeing man soon builds him up a happy and independent home What weight there is in that word "independence" free from rent and landlord's whims! How few British farmers can lay it to the credit side of their account? How few of them can say The dust I tread on is mine But to the wool growing You hear of failures in all classes of business yet how seldom do you hear of it among wool growers With the right class of men I know of no countries better adapted for the culture of sheep husbandry than Eastern Oregon and Eastern Washington There is a grand scope either for private enterprise or for companies on a large or small scale as have been so successfully conducted in Australia and New Zealand For the man with moderate means however I say let him be hopeful and frugal and remember that his little flock is always increasing that he has unlimited free range here and that the growth of his wool is perpetual In a number of years his hundreds of sheep will be multiplied into thousands and in the course of time with proper care and industry and attention he will become very wealthy But as Longfellow says, "He must learn to labor and to wait"

You ask for an estimated cost of sheep running in Eastern Oregon or Eastern Washington Of course the larger capital employed with judicious experienced men in charge of the flocks (same way as the Australian private sheep companies are worked) give greater returns (because there are no rents for however large the range) than those derived by single individuals with limited means Still let us suppose the investment to be small say on 2,000 ewes I shall take care rather to undervalue than over estimate the facts

Estimate of Profits— 2,000 ewes price 3 dols per head (12 shillings) [illegible] 00

Expenses First Year —Loss on stock [illegible] per cent 100 dols herders wages which are 25 dols to [illegible] dols per month but say 40 dollars per month 480 dols herders and others board 480 dols extra help at lambing time 90 dols extra shearing say for the whole flock at 5 cents per head 100 dols wool bags and incidental expenses 100 dols hauling wool to market 100 dols Total, 1,440 dols or in English money £[illegible]

Returns First Year —Unwashed wool 5 lbs per fleece 10,000 lbs at 25 cents or 1s per lb [illegible] dols increase in stock 1,800 lambs at 2 dols per head [illegible] Total [illegible] 100 dols Net profit —4,660 dols or £[illegible]

Observe I have made no allowance for scab nor extra winter feed Scab ought not to be in a well managed flock and should it make its appearance it can be checked at little cost by practical hands The hay can entirely be made to meet its own expenses Now there is a return the first year of nearly [illegible] per cent on the actual outlay on your [illegible] of course [illegible] interest on the money invested must be deducted from the profits of your flock

In wool growing as in everything else much of the success depends upon the man Many inexperienced and careless Americans excited by the great profit of sheep husbandry rush into the sheep business —men who are totally unfit by nature to handle or to learn to handle stock unacquainted with the several diseases attending flocks and their management the greater portion of them men who do not even know how to catch a sheep Many of them are negligent and incur heavy expenses but such very soon find that although the profits may be made large so can expenses and losses As stock men such men are worthless and of course if they fail they never blame themselves for failure always the country

Stock men to prosper must have experience As far as possible they must have a thorough knowledge of the various diseases sheep are heir to Men possessed of good judgment and have plenty of self reliance and stick to their flocks It does not follow that the inexperienced man who starts although with the largest flock succeeds the fastest often it is the experienced attentive shepherd who begins with a few hundred ewes and gradually works up studying as they increase their improvement in quality more than quantity—the true and money making principle whether in large or small flocks The sheep in Eastern Oregon unfortunately are not the best class they are a little of everything, Cotswold Southdown Merino and Mexican mixed Yet what a large percentage on the outlay they return to their owners With a fixed type and an improved sheep how much more still can the profits be raised from the increased weight and quality both of wool and mutton The industry is so young here that most of the breeders do not seem yet to have arrived at any particular standard of sheep most suitable to the country and climate My opinion and experience however is that the Spanish merinoes, or a cross between Leicester and merinoes are what are wanted in this country Either will produce a nice medium sized sheep with abundant wool and good mutton A medium sized sheep is what is wanted in Eastern Oregon Indeed a medium sized animal is more satisfactory at all times than an over large one Neither I am sorry to say is the law of selection much studied in this country, it is only a few of the most enterprising men that put the best to the best. Were the principle of election universally applied to both the parent animals and parent plants of this country what an enormous increase would it add to the wealth of the agricultural classes of this State and Eastern Washington? I know no class of men that Eastern Oregon is more suitable for than our Scotch New Zealanders a class of men that would not only do good to themselves but add much to the prosperity of our beautiful State. I could instance many enterprising and highly educated men in New Zealand and Australia to whom I am known who have been receiving fair salaries as managers—men who have saved their earnings and if an opportunity could be afforded them such as is open to them now in Eastern Oregon they could soon work themselves into affluence and independence What is to hinder a few of these thrifty New Zealand shepherds to form small companies, come here and work together for a few years till each is able to start on his own account New Zealanders are nearly all good stock men exactly what is wanted amongst us here in Eastern Oregon There are splendid opportunities for Scotch men in this State, for capitalists, and men of moderate capital too What princely properties can be had here for little outlay Government land, if wished to be bought is very low at present in Eastern Oregon 5s an acre, but it cannot remain long so Even in Western Oregon nearer the Pacific ocean, and which is thickly settled up (the great agricultural region of this country where is raised the finest wheat in the world one can hardly realize the difference between the value of land there and Great Britain although there are not now any large tracts of Government lands to be got in Western Oregon Improved and cultivated farms that you can purchase to-day in Western Oregon for £3 to £6, and in some cases adjacent to towns £7 per acre, would actually cost at home, were they of the same quality £100 per acre and are here obtained at the price of the first two years rental in Scotland

Eastern Oregon and Eastern Washington must for the present however, remain pastoral countries. Wool growers there have suffered in the past for want of direct railway communication with the markets of the Eastern Atlantic States but our country is yet in its infancy and I hope the day is not far distant when we will hear the hoarse roar of the locomotive re-echo among our beautiful hills and dales in Eastern Oregon and Eastern Washington Western Oregon strictly speaking is the country lying between the Cascade Mountains and the Pacific Ocean It may be included in three districts or valleys First the Wallamet the grand controlling agricultural valley In extent it is about 150 miles long by 50 miles broad but there are no prairie government lands for sale there although only about one-seventh of that valley has ever been ploughed A great portion of the Wallamet valley can be purchased now second handed from its owners The reason is this—To secure early settlements of Americans in Oregon, the United States, in order to drive the Indians by civilization out of the country from 1845 to 1854 when there was only a few white families in that vast region of country offered donations or gifts of 640 acres to each man and his wife who settled in Oregon Many thousands took advantage of this liberal offer and crossed the plains among the Indians with teams, and when they arrived finding the Wallamet valley to be the finest portion of the State and unpeopled, they selected the finest and richest agricultural lands, became rich in cattle and lands and afterwards bought in addition those vacant lands adjacent to that presented to them by the United States Government, and many have held on to these lands till now and finding they cannot cultivate them all themselves are disposed to sell to new comers at from £2 to £6 per acre according to location (nearness to towns) and improvements (fences and buildings) the [illegible] being portions with and without timber

Here is a chance for British farmers and capitalists securing goodly heritages for their families There is no finer wheat country in the world the land has been cropped continuously from fifteen to thirty years and yet without manure it retains its original richness the soil yet teems with wealth untouched by the plough With an enterprising class of farmers who understand mixed husbandry as well as wheat growing this large valley can be turned into the garden of the Pacific where nearly all kinds of fruits grow more luxuriantly than I have seen them in any other country In Western Oregon strictly speaking there are but two seasons summer (mild and dry) and winter (rainy) rain falling on an average once in every third day for five months with occasional intervals of fine dry weather in winter The [illegible] are not tropical but fall similar to what they do in Scotland though the winters are much milder and spring comes earlier Droughts floods high winds and great storms are unknown In the memory of the oldest inhabitant nobody ever heard of a failure of crops in Western Oregon so that it is certain as ye sow so shall ye reap Salmon fisheries exist at the mouths of nearly all the rivers which are numerous the country being abundantly watered Eastern Oregon and Eastern Washington are rolling prairie countries 600 miles long, interspersed with hills and almost devoid of timber while in Western Oregon, along the sea coast and inland river there are almost inexhaustible quantities of the finest timber in the world trees 200 to 300 feet high

I am happy to say some of our great capitalists have become tillers of the soil I will instance Mr R R Thompson and Mr S G Reed both of Portland Oregon The former gentleman has introduced an English Fowler steam plough with great success on his beautiful farm in Yamhill county Western Oregon under the management of a Scotch man from Arbroath and before long I hope Mr Thompson will open the eyes of this not over enlightened agricultural community to the advantages here of deep ploughing and sub-soiling One and all of us look to Mr S G Reed as our great fine blooded stock raiser and our great pioneer in general husbandry He has built up a princely farming establishment at Reedville 12 miles from the town of Portland an establishment for perfection and good stock that can wave its flag mast high in any country Mr Reed has introduced into Oregon at an enormous expense various breeds of the highest standard including short horn and Ayrshire cattle Clydesdale and trotting horses Cotswold and Leicester sheep, Berkshire pigs and poultry of various classes Reedville is at present the stronghold of blooded stock in our State with judicious management and the same continued enterprise bestowed upon it as the worthy proprietor is at present doing, I hope to see it before long not only the home of good stock for Oregon but the stronghold of improved stock on the [illegible] How delighted Britishers who come to Oregon are to view through the Reedville farming establishment All have it full of admiration Some of the aged ones lift their hats and with a heavy tear in their eye say "This puts me in mind of home" Next to the Wallamet valley comes the Umpqua valley, though of less extent, it is very rich and attractive in scenery it is an excellent wheat growing district and the rolling hills and prairies are well adapted for sheep also Last is the "Rogue river valley," it is warmer and balmier than the others, grain of every description grows in abundance Peaches, plums and grapes grow in perfection, and what is still more commendable, "alfalfa" or Chilian clover grows in great luxuriance, carrying a number of sheep per acre There the climate is a happy medium between that of Oregon and California

—Now I think I have said enough to encourage others of our countrymen to come and see for themselves I have only represented what experience and observation has taught me No one should express an opinion after they arrive until they have had a year in the country and if then they do not say that this is a land pre-eminently suited for Scotchmen I shall be disappointed When they come here let them stay not in towns but at once get to work and if with a will they work as they would do in Scotland, their future success is certain Never be overcome with that childish effeminate disease called "home sickness" If you have been rack rented or crossed by adversities, forget them for any sake and start afresh Show Scotch pluck Snap your fingers at trials and look on them as "trifles light as air" it will all come right very soon Say in your heart, "I will not believe in the darkness because I do not see the new day, which is about to arise" Still let me advise no man to leave his home Emigration is at all times a delicate point to meddle with but to those who are ambitious, or who look to their families' future in the world and think they can, after reading these remarks, better themselves by emigration then muster courage and let our Scotch St Andrew's Society here extend the hand of fellowship to them when they arrive, and offer them a cordial welcome to the land of the setting sun Remember I write this letter only for the benefit of experienced agricultural men and stockraisers I recommend none other than the farming classes to come to this State

THE ATTORNEY GENERALSHIP

Some days before the announcement was made public that Attorney General Williams had determined to resign the New York Sun contained a dispatch from Washington, from which it appears the facts in the premises had been ascertained with such accuracy, as far as subsequent events have disclosed them, as to lend an air of probability to the rest The Sun's dispatch said

President Grant has finally determined to part company with Attorney General Williams and that functionary has been informed from the White House that his resignation is required This is the reason why he did not go to Concord with the rest Precisely why the President has become tired of his favorite Attorney General I am not able to state but so it is and Mrs Williams has appealed in vain to save some kind of official dignity for her husband and herself After Mr Boker had been nominated and confirmed as minister to Russia, the President offered her that place and this office was held for some time under consideration Mrs Williams however finally concluded that as she had been prominent in the crusade against Madame Catacazy, which resulted in the social ostracism of that lady long before Catacazy himself was dismissed St Petersburg would not be a place where she could expect a brilliant or even a quiet career and accordingly though with great reluctance the offer was declined Mrs Williams then made a dead set at the President to obtain for her husband the post of minister to England Against the proposition Secretary Fish interposed all his influence and besides Gen Schenck who has no political opening at home and since the failure of Little Emma, nothing but his salary and his occasional winnings at poker to live on, has never had any thought of resigning, and to dismiss him would cause trouble with his friends Finally the request that Williams should be appointed to the court of St. James was refused, and at last his resignation has been demanded The transaction will be consummated as soon as the President gets back from Massachusetts and makes up his mind who shall be Attorney General in his place The most earnest candidate is Mr E W Stoughton of New York This gentleman has had very [illegible] for the distinction having written and published two elaborate essays thoroughly indorsing and supporting the extreme infamy of Grant's, Casey's and Kellogg's usurpation in Louisiana. This service was very warmly appreciated by Grant, and even Mr. Fish while ostensibly holding aloof from the shameful transaction and causing it to be reported that he had not authorized the dispatch approving Sheridan's banditti proposal, nevertheless wrote a very flattering letter to Mr Stoughton thanking him for his most opportune [illegible] and yet, for Stoughton's sake I grieve to say that he is not likely to meet with the reward for which he labored, and while Grant would like to pay him a great public compliment, he has about made up his mind that he will not appoint him However, this telegram of mine may change the President's mind, and if Stoughton should get the place, after all, I trust he will be grateful enough to remember that he owes the change to the fact of the present unreserved publication of all the circumstances of the matter and of Grant's present intentions

TUESDAY MORNING, MAY 18, 1875.

THE WORK OF THE IMMIGRATION COMMISSION.

Yesterday we stated at some length and somewhat in detail the work doing by the Board of Immigration. It is well known the services of the board are given gratuitously. No one connected with the board receives any compensation, except the Assistant Secretary, Mr. L. B. Stearns, and his salary is merely nominal. But to conduct the business of the board, every one will see, requires the expenditure of money for printing, for fuel and for other incidentals that can not be dispensed with. The State having made no appropropriation for the purpose, the board have no resources except contributions from persons who have the growth and development of the State at heart. Under these circumstances the statement may surprise the reader, but it is true, nevertheless, that some of the wealthiest firms, having a large trade in the interior of the State, have contributed only ten or twelve dollars each. And from outside of Portland no contributions have been received. These things should make every Oregonian blush. Here are gentlemen working hard and earnestly to people our State, devoting a large part of their time every day to her immigration interests without fee and without other reward than the conciousness of serving their country and the community in which they live; yet they are unable to get from the people either of Portland or the State at large so much money as is necessary to defray the small working expenses of the board. The board has already printed 12 or 15 different publications on Oregon, of which about 20,000 copies have been forwarded to the different foreign commissioners and to inquirers. The postage on this and other printed matter is a very considerable item of expense. Where is this money to come from? The legislature having declined to make any appropriation, the people must take up the cause in earnest or it must fail. There ought to be no hesitating in the matter. The State board cannot reasonably be expected to continue their efforts, without the least co-operation on the part of the people. And the people cannot afford to let the work stop. The State cannot afford to have the stream of immigration that has begun to flow into our valleys cease. But it will cease if the efforts of the board are remitted and the stranger is left to find his way into the country and to seek employment unaided by the information he now gets through the board, and uncheered by the welcome he now receives. The board are all men who can be trusted, if any men can be, and they should be heartily and earnestly assisted in their work by every citizen of the State according to his means and opportunities. We have evidence already of what earnest co-operative endeavor and a little funds can accomplish under the management of persevering and honest men; in the light of what has been done, we feel justified in urging the duty of liberal contributions to extend the work. The commissioners say they could treble their labors and vastly extend their sphere of usefulness, had they the funds to do so. From the Australian and New Zealand colonies there are now en route to Oregon several families, and others are to follow. There are three Oregon Commissioners there, who tell the board they must have more printed information of different kinds about Oregon, as the interest is awaking there, and many English colonial farmers, burdened with the heavy taxation of the colonies (New Zealand's debt being, according to population, three times more than Great Britain's, and amounting to nearly one hundred millions of dollars), are very anxious to leave those colonies and come to such a State as ours, where they can get cheap lands and have more prospective advantages, more productive soil, and greater certainty of their crops. Shall this opportunity be neglected? We ask our people to consider the question. Shall it be lost?

THE PER CENT. OF GAIN FROM HOME MANUFACTURES IN USING NATURAL POWER.

Eighth Article.

The manufacturers of California, especially of San Francisco, use artificial power. It will be the chief obstacle to their ultimate success in close competition, as their journals already intimate. The San Francisco Bulletin of April 29th says: "We freely confess, that there are drawbacks impeding the progress of the manufacturing industries of San Francisco." These drawbacks are specifically stated to be "a scarcity of skilled labor and cheap fuel." "The immigration," adds the Bulletin, "may supply the former in part. The question, where shall we get cheap, hard coal from? is probably the most difficult to answer." This is the question of motive power. It is the question also of smelting power. In the former case it is the question of first cost of constant supply. A gentleman engaged in manufacturing monkey-wrenches only, in Worcester, Mass., said he had spent $80,000 in dams to save the waste water of spring floods for use in the dry season. Charles Deese, Esq., vice president of the J. Deese Plow Co., in Moline, Ill., says although they have coals very abundant and cheap, it is one-third cheaper to buy water power with which to run their manufactory. The testimony and experience of other manufacturers prove the same statements. The cost and waste and wear of steam machinery, with the additional cost of insurance, and the cost of the cheapest fuel that can be got, render it impossible for San Francisco manufacturers to compete with those who have large, convenient and permanent water powers. As quoted in the first article, a San Francisco gentleman said, "You at Oregon City can make money when we cannot run a spindle." There is no room to doubt the truth of this remark. It costs $40 per day of twelve hours to run the Mission mills—$30 for coal and $10 for fireman and engineer. It costs no more than $2 per day and night for the same power at Oregon City. That place has the largest and most available power on the coast, estimated at 1,000,000 horse power, of which only about 300 horse power is now used by the two flour mills, the woolen mills, the tub and pail factory, the furniture factory and the machine shops. The vast proportion of that power has been running to waste from time immemorial. It is now so much dead loss to the people and to the State. Its use would be so much net gain. The water powers of Salem, Albany, Jefferson, Olympia, and many other places are available, large, and only partly used.

This question of power for factories has been the chief one that has located and built up the manufacturing cities of New England. It has attracted skilled labor and raw material to those centers of motive power. Lawrence, in 1845, was only a farming section. A riffle of rock diagonally across the Merrimac, hardly seen except at low water, led capitalists to build a granite dam, laid in hydraulic cement, so as to utilize that power, and that moves those vast factories which send their fabrics all over the world. The waters of the same river, and of the Connecticut and a multitude of smaller streams, are held by dams every few miles for similar purposes. If $30 per day is saved by every factory that uses water power—and this is an average calculation by every business man—every one saves $9,300 per annum.

"In San Francisco $31,355,781 are permanently invested in manufactories. The number of establishments is 1,066. The value of materials used per year is $27,012,881. The number of white men employed is 9,713; white women, 2,697; white children, 1,485; Chinese laborers, 10,813; making a total of 24,108 laborers employed, whose wages aggregate the sum of $11,251,948. Value of products, $63,596,930.

"The aggregate capital actually employed in San Francisco last year, as represented in the paid-up capital and deposits of the commercial and savings banks, amounted to a trifle over $75,000,000. According to the statements already referred to, says the Bulletin, over one-half of this sum was used operating its manufactories, in payment of labor employed, of material consumed, and of interest paid on invested capital. The value of the products of these manufactories is estimated at over $63,500,000, which, after the payment of all expences and a liberal allowance made for interest on original investment, would leave a net profit to the manufacturers of at least $20,000,000, or about 30 per cent. on the total outlay. No language can be employed which will present more eloquently the inducements the manufacturing interests of San Francisco hold out to capital, than do these figures."

Of the 1,066 establishments we presume 100 need and use motive power, for which they pay about one million dollars per annum more than the cost of water power would be at Oregon City, or at various other places on the Willamet or Columbia rivers.

The San Francisco manufactories are classed as follows: Iron and steel, lead, gold and silver, brass and bell metal, tin, lumber, leather, fabrics, dry goods, liquors, groceries and provisions, annual products and miscellaneous. These include 47 foundries, 1 rolling mill, 21 furniture manufactories, 24 carriage factories, 120 clothing manufactories, 40 boot and shoe establishments, besides smaller numbers for every description of work under any of the classes above mentioned. These items will serve to indicate to the reader the great variety of manufactures already begun in that city. If the profits on the whole amount are 30 per cent., as estimated, what precludes the same results to capitalists here? San Francisco last year exported over $4,000,000 worth of their manufactured goods. They work under difficulties. They buy water, and fuel and ground at high rates. Labor is high. We could save, in every one of these items, a very large per cent. In the matter of insurance a water power manufactory has also a great advantage.

It is a lesson to be studied, that over half of the funds in the San Francisco commercial and savings banks are employed in manufactures, and that they are rivaling the Eastern States in many classes of goods. It is another proof that a State cannot prosper without manufactures. California could more easily than any other State, but her capitalists perceive that their surest investments and largest aggregate returns are in and from the employment of power and labor in the manufacture of raw material, and the supply of goods for their own and other markets. When we turn from the railroad dreams of speculation, we too shall steadily prosper.

A correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, writing from Tennessee, says large numbers of negroes remove farther South every year, leaving the plantations on which they have spent all their lives; and that this exodus is so great that farm hands have already become quite scarce. The colored people make of a year's work about $150 to $200, which many of them spend in getting away to the extreme South.

A FATAL SHOT.—A young man named Michael Lynch was accidentally shot on Sun day evening, from the effects of which he die in several hours. On Sunday Michael Lync a younger brother, and another young ma named David Rankin, procured a small bo and started down to the farm of Mr. Rankin an old gentleman who lives near the rive several miles below the city. Thinking tha they might see some ducks on the way Michael took with him a single-barrel sho gun. The party had reached their destina tion, and was on their way back. Michael had been rowing some little time, when, at the suggestion of his brother, he gave up the oar to the latter. He had moved toward the stern of the skiff, and was in the act of setting down, when observing his gun lying in the bottom of the boat, he stooped to pick it up and place it across his lap, so if opportunity presented, the weapon could be readily used.
Grasping the weapon with his right hand nea the muzzle, he was lifting it up, when the load was discharged. The entire charge took effect in the right arm a few inches below the shoulder joint, lacerating the flesh in a shock ing manner and shivering the bone of the limb into fragments. The axillary artery was also severed. When the weapon was dis charged, the unfortunate victim was in a stooping attitude and the muzzle could not have been more than a foot distant from the arm. The gun was very short (the barrel at one time had been filed off) and was heavily charged with No. 3 duck shot. It was about 5 o'clock in the afternoon when the fatal casualty occurred. Fortunately the boat was but a short distance below Portland. The two young men who were in the skiff at the time, hurried with all pos sible speed toward the city. Reaching here, a wagon was procured in which the wounded man was placed, and conveye to the residence of his brother-in-law, James Rankin, in East Portland. Meantime Drs. C H. Raffety and Alfred Kinney were sum moned. Much blood was lost from the rup tured artery, and the nervous system had re ceived a fearful shock. Reaction never took place, and notwithstanding every medical effort, the wounded man continued to sink and expired about 10 o'clock on Sunday night, after suffering several hours of the most ex cruciating pain. Coroner Wetmore was no tified, and proceeding to Mr. Rankin's resi dence yesterday afternoon, summoned a jury, and held an inquest. David Rankin and the brother of the deceased, who were with him when the accident transpired, were examined, and also several other witnesses. Dr. John B.
Pilkington made an examination of the wound and gave medical testimony as to the causes producing death. After hearing all the evi dence, the jury returned the following ver dict:

We, the jury summoned by J. A. Wetmore, coroner of Multnomah county, Oregon, to in quire into the cause of the death of Michael Lynch, whose body now lies before us, at the residence of James Rankin, do find from the evidence that deceased came to his death from a gunshot wound which took effect in the right arm near the shoulder, from an accidental dis charge of the weapon in his own hands while in a skiff on the Columbia Slough on Sunday, May 16th, 1875. [Signed.] H. H. Crocer, Foreman, F. A. Clarke, N. Sheridan, J. M.
Baltimore, H. Barber, Guy Rankin.

Michael Lynch was aged about 21 years, and unmarried. He has four sisters residing in Portland and a brother. His mother re sides in San Francisco. Deceased was a sober and industrious young man and well respected.
The funeral took place yesterday.

TEMPERANCE MEETINGS.—The basement of the Baptist church was nearly filled with an audience of temperance people, Friday even ing, on which occasion several addresses were made, Mrs. Bentley sang a sweet song, and other interesting exercises were presented. A temperance meeting was also held Sunday afternoon at the Hall street M. E. church, pre sided over by B. A. Lillie. An interesting programme was presented—nearly equal in variety and entertainment to the monthly concert exercises. A number of stirring tem perance songs, by a quartette, were rendered with fine effect. A duet by two young ladies, "Father, drink no more," was equally well received. "The lips that touch liquor shall never touch mine," a duet by Miss Pumphrey and Mrs. Bentley, was sweetly sung, and was applauded by the audience. Five-minute speeches were called for and were responded to by Messrs. Shaver, Crozier and Royal. The first gentleman made a telling speech. Mr.
Royal said he heard of several young men, re spectably connected, who were out in the west ern part of the city the other evening, under the influence of liquor, making stump speech es, shouting, etc. He stated that there was a place up the river where young men and boys congregate on Sundays and engage in riotous performances. Reading, "The mother's pray er," by Miss M. Combs, singing by the school, and benediction closed the interesting and pleasing exercises. A similar meeting is an nounced for next Sunday at the same place, at 3:30 o'clock.

LADIES' FAIR AND FESTIVAL.—For some tim past the ladies of St. Stephen's Chapel hav busied themselves in making preparations f the fair and festival with which they wil entertain their friends and the Portland publi to-night, at Good Templar's Hall, corner o Third and Alder streets. Beside a great num ber of fancy articles—useful and ornamenta —in the making of which the ladies have worked so faithfully, refreshments will be served. The proceeds of the fair are to be de voted to the needs of St. Stephen's Chapel which has seldom asked the public patronage their last, a very pleasant and attractive affai having been held nearly two years ago. Th ladies have striven hard to meet the approva of their friends and are deserving of remem brance. Our citizens should show that they appreciate their efforts, by extending a gene rous support.

CITY.

A FATAL SHOT.—A young man named Michael Lynch was accidentally shot on Sunday evening from the effects of which he died in several hours. On Sunday Michael Lynch, a younger brother, and another young man named David Rankin procured a small boat and started down to the farm of Mr Rankin, an old gentleman who lives near the river several miles below the city. Thinking that they might see some ducks on the way, Michael took with him a single barrel shot gun. The party had reached their destination and was on their way back. Michael had been rowing some little time when at the suggestion of his brother he gave up the oars to the latter. He had moved toward the stern of the skiff, and was in the act of setting down when observing his gun lying in the bottom of the boat, he stooped to pick it up and place it across his lap so if opportunity presented the weapon could be readily used. Grasping the weapon with his right hand near the muzzle, he was lifting it up when the gun was discharged. The entire charge took effect in the right arm a few inches below the shoulder joint, lacerating the flesh in a shocking manner and shivering the bone of the arm into fragments. The axillary artery was also severed. When the weapon was discharged, the unfortunate victim was in a stooping attitude and the muzzle could not have been more than a foot distant from the arm. The gun was very short (the barrel at one time had been filed off) and was heavily charged with No 3 duck shot. It was about 3 o'clock in the afternoon when the fatal casualty occurred. Fortunately the boat was but a short distance below Portland. The two young men who were in the skiff with the victim, hurried with all possible speed toward the city. Reaching here a wagon was procured in which the wounded man was placed and conveyed to the residence of his brother in law James Rankin in East Portland. Meantime Drs C H Raffety and Alfred Kinney were summoned. Much blood was lost from the ruptured artery, and the nervous system had received a fearful shock. Reaction never took place, and notwithstanding every medical effort, the wounded man continued to sink and expired about 10 o'clock on Sunday night after suffering several hours of the most excruciating pain. Coroner Wetmore was notified and proceeding to Mr Rankin's residence yesterday afternoon summoned a jury, and held an inquest. David Rankin and the brother of the deceased, who were with him when the accident transpired, were examined, and also several other witnesses. Dr John B Pilkington made an examination of the wound and gave medical testimony as to the causes producing death. After hearing all the evidence the jury returned the following verdict:

We, the jury summoned by J A Wetmore, coroner of Multnomah county, Oregon, to inquire into the cause of the death of Michael Lynch whose body now lies before us at the residence of James Rankin, do find from the evidence that deceased came to his death from a gunshot wound which took effect in the right arm near the shoulder from an accidental discharge of the weapon in his own hands while in a skiff on the Columbia Slough on Sunday May 16th, 1875. [Signed] H H Crosser, foreman, F A Clarke, N Sheridan, J M [illegible], H Barber, Guy Rankin.

Michael Lynch was aged about 21 years and unmarried. He has four sisters residing in Portland and a brother. His mother resides in San Francisco. Deceased was a sober and industrious young man and well respected. The funeral took place yesterday.

TEMPERANCE MEETINGS.—The basement of the Baptist church was nearly filled with an audience of temperance people, Friday evening, on which occasion several addresses were made, Mrs Bentley sang a sweet song and other interesting exercises were presented. A temperance meeting was also held Sunday afternoon at the Hall street M E church presided over by B A Lillie. An interesting programme was presented—nearly equal in variety and entertainment to the monthly concert exercises. A number of stirring temperance songs, by a quartette, were rendered with fine effect. A duet by two young ladies "Father, drink no more," was equally well received. "The lips that touch liquor shall never touch mine," a duet by Miss Pamphrey and Mrs Bentley, was sweetly sung and was applauded by the audience. Five minute speeches were called for and were responded to by Messrs Shaver, Crozier and Royal. The latter gentleman made a telling speech. Mr Royal said he heard of several young men, respectably connected, who were out in the western part of the city the other evening under the influence of liquor, making stump speech, shouting etc. He stated that there was a place up the river where young men and boys congregate on Sundays and engage in riotous performances. Reading, "The mother's prayer," by Miss M Combs, singing by the school, and benediction closed the interesting and pleasing exercises. A similar meeting is announced for next Sunday at the same place at 3 o'clock.

LADIES' FAIR AND FESTIVAL.—For some time past the ladies of St Stephen's Chapel have busied themselves in making preparations for the fair and festival with which they will entertain their friends and the Portland public to-night, at Good Templars Hall corner of Third and Alder streets. Beside a great number of fancy articles—useful and ornamental—in the making of which the ladies have worked so faithfully, refreshments will be served. The proceeds of the fair are to be devoted to the needs of St Stephen's Chapel which has seldom asked the public patronage, the last, a very pleasant and attractive affair having been held nearly two years ago. The ladies have striven hard to meet the approval of their friends and are deserving of remembrance. Our citizens should show that they appreciate their efforts by extending a generous support.

NEW FERRY BOAT.—Jos Knott's new ferry boat still lies moored just above the Pacific dock. The craft is all completed and only lacks the machinery to drive her against the combined forces of tide, wind and current. It was expected to have the boat rendering service long ago. The Albina iron works have the contract for turning out the machinery and as they have not yet commenced operations the cause of the detention is apparent. Among the very first work turned out by the new works will be the engines, boiler etc for the ferry. She will be ready to make the trial trip in about a month.

The following paragraph appearing in the San Francisco Call of the 12th inst will be read with great pleasure by his numerous friends: "Captain William Kohl of the Alaska Commercial Company was supposed to have been one of the passengers by the Schiller. Happily a telegram has been received in the city from Captain Kohl, announcing that he is at Philadelphia."

ANNUAL MEETING.—The annual meeting of the Portland Board of Trade will be held some time in August at which time the reports for the whole year,—statistical information concerning the resources of the State etc will be read. The annual meeting was to have been held during the present month but as it was considered too early in the year to enable the committee to collect the necessary statistics of the cereal crop, the meeting was deferred.

SENATOR'S MACHINERY.—All the machinery formerly used on board the steamer Senator has been removed from the dismantled hull. AN INFAMOUS FABRICATION.

Yesterday's issue of the Bulletin contains what purports to be an account of "body snatching" that occurred last week near Milwaukie. The statement is made that a party of three persons from this city visited under cover of darkness the grave of the late Isaac Batt, whose body was found floating in the Wallamet last week, who it was supposed committed suicide while laboring under temporary insanity, and carried the remains away for the purpose of dissection. It would be difficult to conceive of a more infamous and outrageous fabrication than the account contained in the Bulletin in the clear light of the facts of the case. The undersigned in justice to the committee desires to make the following statement of the circumstances. After the remains of Mr Batt were taken from the water an inquest was held by a justice of the peace in the absence of the coroner, a verdict was rendered in accordance with the facts, and, by order of the acting coroner, the body was buried near Milwaukie. Mayor McCown of Oregon City on hearing of the case and knowing deceased to have belonged during his life to several Hebrew Societies in Portland, sent the following telegram under date of April 8th:

To Cohn and Rosenfeldt.—Isaac Batt was found drowned at Milwaukie to-day. Inquest held and body ordered buried there.

Immediately on the receipt of the dispatch Mr L Cohn, President of the Congregation Ahavi Sholum, called a special meeting. A committee of three persons, viz M Franklin, S Abrams and N Nathan was appointed to go to Milwaukie and bring the body down to the Hebrew Cemetery in the southern part of the city and give it a proper burial. Early on the morning of the 9th inst, the committee left here in a wagon bound for Milwaukie. Arriving there about 10 30 o'clock they sought and found the justice of the peace who had held the inquest, to whom they communicated their business and showed the despatch. That officer taking along two other men proceeded with the committee to the spot where the body of Isaac Batt was buried. The two men who accompanied the acting coroner, exhumed the remains which were handed over into the custody of the committee. The body was placed in the wagon brought for the purpose and conveyed to East Portland which place was reached at noon. In the afternoon of the same day the body was conveyed to the Jewish burying ground and interred by the committee. Everything was done in broad daylight. In conclusion we pronounce the entire article of the Bulletin from commencement to ending a base and infamous falsehood.

Under date of the 15th inst Mrs Phelps is in receipt of the following correspondence:

Mrs F M Phelps—MADAME: Having witnessed the excellent performances of Captain McDonald's trained Indians we are desirous of marking our appreciation of Captain McDonald's efforts. We wish that before he leaves for San Francisco he should receive at our hands a recognition of the energy he has displayed in drilling to such perfection the band of Indians he exhibits. We propose that he will appear again if your arrangements will permit on next Tuesday evening May 18th and we feel assured that the public of Portland will make the occasion one to be pleasantly remembered. In conformity with the above request a performance will be given this evening at New Market Theater, which promises to be unusually attractive. For particulars consult the advertisement found elsewhere.

ORTHOGRAPHICAL.

The spell has lost its attractiveness hereabouts it would seem.

The printers announce a spelling contest at their picnic— twelve printers against all comers.

Has the spelling contest between the leading Oregon City and Portland orthographists been given up or is it only taking a rest?

"Spelling Waltz" is the name of a late musical production. Somebody will likely go down on it if the fiddlers ever get to giving it out.

On Saturday evening last a private party and spelling bee was held at the residence of a well known gentleman on Washington street. The affair was a success and they will be continued at different places. The orthographical fever lasts.

PICNICS.

The pupils and teachers connected with the Catholic Sunday school will give their annual picnic at Clackamas grove on Thursday, the weather permitting.

Next Saturday the Methodist Sunday schools of East Portland and Lee's chapel will unite and hold a picnic and excursion to Vancouver. The steamer [illegible] has been chartered and will carry the excursionists to the grounds. The steamer will leave the east side of the river in the morning at 8 o'clock with the members and returning leave Vancouver at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. THE BAPTIST ASSOCIATION.

Rev D J Pierce sends the following from Eugene City:

The Corvallis Baptist Association met with the Palestine Church on Thursday last at their annual meeting.

Over the hills and through the valleys came about thirty delegates and many attendant brethren and sisters. Although the church stands by itself in the country with not a single house in sight yet the house was filled on Saturday evening and much interest was manifested in the discussion of some parts of the business.

More especially were the remarks upon denominational paper, upon missionary work and educational effort. The Pacific Baptist was indorsed and earnestly recommended to the brethren.

Quite a lively subscription was drawn up amounting to $230 for the support of a missionary within the limits of the association.

A most affecting scene was witnessed at the close of a sermon by Elder J C Richardson when he was welcomed to his old home again by the congregation.

Dr R C Hill and others urged the importance of educational effort and the following resolutions were presented and adopted article by article:

RESOLUTIONS ON EDUCATIONAL EFFORT.

WHEREAS The American Baptist Educational Commission has issued an address asking the Baptists of the United States to commemorate the centennial anniversary of our national independence by a simultaneous effort in all our States and Territories for the strengthening and endowing of our institutions of higher learning; and

WHEREAS For the prosecution of this idea the executive committee of said commission has recommended a plan of work for securing the co operation of State associations, churches and individuals; and

WHEREAS The proper education of our youth and the full development of our denominational principles require the privileges of a well endowed institution favorably located among us; therefore

Resolved That we approve the plan of work recommended by the American Baptist Educational Commission and recommend its adoption by the churches of our association.

Resolved That we recommend the appointment of an associational committee to co operate with the executive board of the Baptist college at McMinnville, considered as a central committee in securing subscriptions to the centennial endowment fund to be forever held sacred for such purposes as may be designated in the subscription.

Resolved That we affectionately solicit the earnest active co operation of all state associations in Oregon and Washington Territory in securing, as our Centennial memorial of the era of freedom in America, the complete endowment of a first class institution of learning in Oregon for the culture of our rising generation and the perpetuation of our Gospel principles of liberty of conscience and freedom of thought.

Resolved That we hereby authorize and urge every pastor of our association to secure among his people as many subscribers to the dollar fund as possible and to forward the names with the money accompanying to Dr R C Hill as the accredited agent of our Baptist college, and specifying in each case the object for which the subscription is made.

A SUFFOCATING COUGH.

In a letter from Mrs Charlotte Lisle of Chicago, a lady well known as a contributor to the Western press, she ascribes the cure of a dangerous cough accompanied by bleeding at the lungs to HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR. "My cough," she says, "threatened to suffocate me * * * but the HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR has removed every trace of it." The letter was to a lady friend in this city who has placed it at the disposal of C N Crittenton, 7 Sixth Avenue.

FOR BABY'S SAKE

The weary night has worn away
In troubled dreams and restless pain
And groping through the [illegible] Morn lights its darkened room again
How can I meet this bitter morn [illegible]
How can I bear the thought that [illegible]
From sleep [illegible] baby's [illegible]

The brightest of the morning beams Seeks out the darling there It lights the deep-tinted cheek, it gleams In tangled waves of sunny hair Flies from the hand that grasps it vain
Then kisses the soft lips again
No shadow of my sorrow lies In those forget-me-nots his eyes

I check the sighs that quickly come Drive back the tears that [illegible] [illegible] with looks of gloom
The little one's awakening, His father's face he ne'er shall see More bright his mother's smile must be My bark of joy gone down—its wake Must glitter still—for baby's sake

Dear baby arm that clasp my own!
These embraces renew my power Sweet voice I hear in every tone God's message to my darkest hour
He knew the grief my soul must stir
And sent my little comforter A baby's hand to help me on—A baby's love to lean upon

Not all alone I must sometimes sure My joy in this fair child can be From holier home with love more pure His father watches him with me To grasp heaven's hope by faith and prayer To train his boy to meet him there — For this I live! For this I wake!
Help me, dear Lord! for baby's sake!

THE "POETRY" DRAWER

About this time every year there is a house-cleaning soiree around the office of a daily newspaper The cobwebs are brushed down, some kalsomining done, a little paint applied, and the "head editor" turns the "poetry" drawer of his table wrong side up and sighs a small still sigh as he regards the scores of rejected manuscripts Almost every day for the past year he has tossed poetry into the waste basket with liberal hand, and yet here is enough to fill a book Some have been saved to be returned, but were never called for, others have a ray or two of merit others were laid aside out of compliment to the author, who is level headed on all other matters

Ah, the crushed hopes buried in this heap! The young, the old, matron maid, bachelor and Benedict have contributed Some were thirsting for fame, others had an hour to spare, and nineteen out of twenty have written at the bottom of the last page "I know you like good poetry," or "Please publish this in a conspicuous place"

Some time last fall a young lady, sitting at her chamber window when she ought to have been in bed, saw the cold clouds drive by and heard the October winds wailing on the housetop, and she ran after the ink-bottle and dashed off a pound or two of rhymes commencing with

This autumn eve the winds are blowing, The phantom clouds are floating by Like rivers o'er the rocklets flowing Then

But that's enough When a stone is called a "stonelet" and a brick a "bricklet" such poetry will be worth a dollar a line

Next comes a long letter headed "What a Little Girl Thinks." No one will ever know from that letter what she thought. The ink was heavily diluted with water, the pen was as fine as a pin and the man who succeeded in deciphering it would have had his eyes ruined forever.

The next is more poetry Some poor girl's brother went to war, and happening to remember it, she tunes her lyre and sings!

Our Edward was a noble youth When from his happy mother's home
He passed in soldier's garb uncouth And left our hearthstone sad and lone

It appears from the above that Edward's mother was happy, but as to Edward's own feelings there is no clew. He passed, but whether he passed to Canada or the Potomac no one knows but charity supposes that he died on the battle field Some of the soldiers looked spruce enough in their uniforms, but it seems that Edward's "garb" had an uncouth appearance.

Requiems are always in order When a poet can't tackle anything else, he can always make a requiem About the middle of November is the time to get up requiems on the dying year. This one came in about that time The author says

Filled is the air with snow flakes
As pure as the mind of a bride In snowy white, on a morning bright In youthful beauty and pride

It is a sad thing to look upon a snow-storm, especially if the wood-pile is lying around loose in the back yard and the police are determined to enforce the snow ordinance Further on he says "the winter's winds are cold," but if he has any doubt of it the American public will put up a heap of capital on it

Poetry again It is headed "Alone," and the author says it is original She is a young lady, and she trills

All alone in the twilight lighted room
I am watching the shadows come and go,
Like the restless tide with its ebb and flow
But darker than night is my sad heart's gloom

Poor girl! it's dull business looking for shadows in a dark room And what could have ailed her heart that a breach of promise suit wouldn't have swept away!

And here are two pages on "Last Rites" It's a woman's hand again, and she says

"Lay her upon her bier—
The summer, lately dead!

It's a sad thing to have summer pass away No more hanging over the gate, no more strawberry shortcake—farewell to peaches and cream! The girl undoubtedly felt sad, but she wasn't half as melancholy as her father, who knew that he'd got to lay in ten tons of coal and innumbered potatoes and cabbages

The next is on "The Flag We Love," and a young man must have worked on it until three o'clock in the morning He says that he adores the star spangled banner, and that he wants to die with its folds covering him Flags are so cheap that he can have one on hand to be ready for emergencies

The next one starts off and inquires

Where are the birdies we used to see?

That's the question, and as she does not answer it she cannot expect any one else to bother his head Boys have a habit of "pegging" at birds and perhaps the worm crop was a failure and the songsters had to hunt up fresh fields and pastures new

Ah! well There's dozens of pages left and it will answer every purpose if they are sent to the rag mill If it were a capital offense to put rhymes together every hangman would be killed by overwork within a month —Exchange

AN ELOPEMENT OF WOMEN —Two weeks ago Mrs Cobb of Pike county, Ill took her child and her furniture and her neighbor's wife and two children and eloped The furniture was sold in a neighboring village furnishing funds for the expenses of the lovers' journey, and after a week of hiding and skulking the party arrived in Louisville There, to their dismay they learned that their husbands were also in the city, bent on the recovery of the children, whereupon the strangely mated couple returned to Springfield, whither they were traced When found they swore that they would cling to each other until death, regardless of any other marital vows, but upon being deprived of their children and then left alone by their unsympathetic husbands they counted their money and concluded that there was not enough to take them to Brooklyn after all So they humbly returned to their first love.

The last number of the New York [illegible] journal of [illegible] after a long and elaborate review of the business outlook concludes that trade is as active as is possible under the circumstances The trade of the season in almost every branch of business is in excess both as regards volume and profits of the same period last year and is nearly up to the full average of the profitable season of 1873 [illegible] estimate of the future of business [illegible] it is calculated that since the beginning of the year a total of [illegible] million producers have been added to the great army of in our try

European Crops.

Reports from Europe have heretofore spoken favorably of the condition of crops there, but a late number of the Mark Lane Express seems to think they may be short The article referred to says

During the month of April there has been sharp night frosts with a short allowance of rain Unless we have more of the latter forage will be scarce Corn threatens to be late whatever its bulk. In France wheat has already suffered and rye still more In Russia sowers are actually beaten off by the snow The markets generally show a decline of six pence to a shilling

The Rise in Wheat at the East

A number of our exchanges from the East of dates from the middle of April to May 1st are jubilant over the rise in the price of wheat in the Northwestern States The Chicago Inter-Ocean estimates that this advance has added from $1 000 000 to $2 000 000 to the value of that staple now on hand in Illinois Iowa, Wisconsin and Minnesota and thinks it is not impossible that an additional $5 000 000 may be added in the next few weeks. There would have been a good trade anyhow that paper says even if prices of pork corn wheat and oats had remained at the prices of a month ago But the prospect now is that what is left of the products will sell for a gross price of $10 000 000 to $12 000 000 more than they would have realized at the rates of a month ago

Domestic Produce

In this department of trade there is a good deal of complaint on account of the dullness and the coasting vessels find it difficult to obtain outward cargoes readily Most of them are at present loading lumber either here or at points down the river The wheat surplus be it large or small moves very slowly and with no vessels in port or at hand to all under charter there is but a dull demand and transactions are rare Quotations are nominally at the same figures given last week say $1 50@1 55 per cental the latter being the maximum price news of which has reached us In flour there is a fair demand at the quotations last given and the heavy shipments made during the past two months have very materially reduced the stocks in hand, while a number of our State mills have been short of wheat Mill feed shows no change and owing to the prevailing scarcity the high prices heretofore noticed are well sustained Hay is in good supply at $11@[illegible] per ton. Oats are not coming forward freely and 60 cents per bushel is freely paid for fair lots in sacks, while choice for grinding are worth [illegible] more Provisions are active and prices firm at our last quotations. Bacon 12½ cents for side 8@9 cents for shoulders and 14@15 cents for ham lard jobbing at 16 cents [illegible], butter [illegible] to quality cheese 18c Eggs have declined to 16c with fair receipts Other produce shows no change

Shipping Intelligence.
